Sandeep was keen to become a Civil servant, hence he was devoted towards a lot of intellectual pursuits. The family was a well-knit family, that gave enough space to all, to be what they wanted to be. The freedom, the freedom to make choices, take decision for oneself was something that Sandra's friends really liked about her family. But, when faced with any situation affecting the family, they would all sit together and take a collective decision. It was quite a common scene in their home, "VATIKA", a well furnished house in Safdarjung Enclave, South Delhi, that Sandeep and his friends; Sadhika, Rohan, Akshay and Latika would frequently meet, and they all would have fun and frolic, that gave a sight of a family, that had both of the best worlds. Similarly, Sandra also used to invite her friends almost every fortnight, eating, dancing and playing Carrom, Lotto, Cards and other indoor games used to be a common scene. In short, the family had a lot of nice time, and each member was free to live his/her life by cooperating and being a friend of each other.

A common sight in Delhi, these days, is delivery of milk at door step. The B block, where Sandra lived, this delivery was done by Shiva. He used to deliver Poly packs of milk for 12 years, and, he was 22 years old. Shiva had seen both Sandra and Sandeep growing, and was like a family, as Mrs. and Mr. Merchant, Sandra's parents were benevolent. Mr. Merchant had even got Shiva's father a stall in their colony approved by the Resident's welfare association, as he was the General Secretary.
